Shentel hereby certifies that it complies with all applicable service quality standards and consumer protection rules, including applicable rules, regulations, and orders of the Federal Communications Commission and the Virginia State Corporation Commission. In addition, the company abides by the terms and conditions set forth in its retail tariffs. SHENANDOAH TELEPHONE COMPANY

Response to Row 600, Form 481

Shentel hereby certifies that is able to function in emergency situations in accordance with 47 C.F.R. § 54.202(a)(2). Specifically, Shentel has developed an Emergency Response Protocol to evaluate and address situations expected to occur during a disruptive event impacting the company's services. All Shentel facilities are equipped with on-site, back-up generator power. These generators are sized to meet or exceed the power draw required to energize all communications services originating from the company's switching facilities, and are supported by significant fuel stores allowing them to run for at least 36 hours before refueling is required. Shentel also has priority fueling contracts in place with vendors to insure that the company's fuel needs will be met in the event of an emergency. In addition to the generator back-up power, all communications facilities, central offices and remote facilities, have a minimum of 8 hours of battery back-up. This back-up is intended to smooth the transition from commercial to back-up power and provide additional back-up power if any generator does not start immediately. Shentel's optical transport network employs a ring architecture, which permits fiber transport disruptions to be routed to the other side of the optical ring, ensuring a continuity of services. Shentel's networks are also sized to support traffic increases caused by an emergency situation. Shentel also has alternate paths to route traffic to providers with additional capacity during these times, effectively balancing the load should the load exceed the capability of any single upstream provider.

BASIC TELEPHONE SERVICE

I. GENERAL

It is the intent and moral responsibility of the Telephone Company to give courteous, accurate, and speedy telephone service at all times to all who desire it in an exchange area within normal economic guidelines. The customer has the choice of having the station wiring installed by the Company or by others.

II. BASIC SERVICE CHARGE

This charge covers the cost and maintenance of the central office equipment, outside plant facilities, and station protector up to and including the Network Interface Device and the customer's premises.

III. TEMPORARY SERVICE
